Student Donors Spur Fund-Raising Group

The Lima Campus has advanced another milestone with the successful completion of the Capital Fund Drive netting $425,000 toward purchase of the 564-acre site two miles east of the city on State Route 30S.

The Student Senate accentuated the drive by presenting Chairman Charles H. Cook with a gift of $500 from the student body.

The drive began Dec. 1 with an address by The Ohio State University President, Dr. Novice Fawcett, before 200 lay leaders at the Shawnee Country Club.

Dr. Fawcett expressed faith in the Lima citizenry to come to grips with problems of higher education in Lima. Local young people are now provided with additional opportunities close at home. "We can develop to the highest degree our local human resources," said Dr. Fawcett.

Almost immediately an organization of outstanding lay leadership representing business, industry, profession and labor was perfected.

Hundreds of citizens carried the Lima Campus message to everyone. Contributions ranged from $500 to $30,000 from major businesses and industries and from $5 to $3000 in gifts from individuals. Hundreds of people contributed directly or indirectly to this project.

Off-Campus Dean Moulton Sees Third-Year Courses for Fall

A limited number of third-year courses will, according to The Ohio State University officials, make their advent during the 1965-66 term.

In a recent telephone interview, Dr. Edward Q. Moulton, OSU dean of off-campus education, said third-year courses will be contingent on adequate financing and facilities.

Although no courses were specifically named, Dr. Moulton indicated they may include English and history.

"We cannot provide a full third-year curriculum for the majority of students, although we intend to do as much as we can to assist them," Dr. Moulton noted.

"First priority will be given to first- and second-year curriculum," he said, "We must provide prerequisite training for students planning to continue professional training.

"Broadening the two-year program at the Lima campus will enable students to transfer to other four-year universities without worries of inadequate credits," Dr. Moulton concluded.

"When permanent facilities are open at the beginning of the 1966 school year, university officials hope to expand third-year courses."

Architects Submit Progress Report

The office of Strong, Strong & Strong, Architects, Lima, Ohio, has completed and submitted to OSU officials for their approval preliminary plans for a four-story building.

The architect is now laying out science, library, and other special areas.

Site master plan has been under consideration for some time and location of the first building is expected to be announced shortly. After location is given, building, walks, drives, parking and access drives can be designed.

The exterior design of the building is in progress by the architect. Stair halls, cross sections of building, and other construction details are in progress also.

The structural steel frame is in the design stage by the architect.

Additional trips to Columbus for construction and design conferences will be held weekly.

Lima Campus Gets Spot in OSU Makio

For the first time in the history of The Ohio State University, the branch campuses are to be included in the Makio, Ohio State's yearbook.

Representatives from the Makio visited the Lima Campus in January to obtain photographs and to assign copy.

The copy will include the history of the Lima Campus, an article on social events, and the plans for the expansion and growth of the new campus center.

The Director Speaks

"I Am Grateful; I Am Proud"

I am grateful for the generous response of the Lima citizenry in over-subscribing our goal by contributing $425,000 to the Capital Fund Drive for the acquisition of the new site of 564 acres on 30S.

This, together with the magnanimous gift of $250,000 from the Galvin Foundation, will provide adequate funds for the purchase and further expansion of educational facilities.

The earmarking by the State Legislature of $3,300,000 for new buildings on the new Lima Campus will expedite architectural plans and make possible the meeting of the target date of October, 1966, for the autumn quarter in the new facilities.

I am proud to live in a city and in a ten-county area where the citizens have an abiding faith in the possibilities and potential of youth, and believe that education is an investment in people.

Words can only inadequately express our real appreciation for the altruistic efforts of the enthusiastic chairman, Charles H. Cook, and his associates, Perry Webb and Harry Moyer, who always have time for any cause which contributes to the welfare of the community, and who believe that "what is good for our youth is good for our community."

Lima citizenry can be proud to have so many devoted and public-spirited citizens who contributed freely of their valuable time away from their regular jobs.

Such services over and beyond the call of duty are most praiseworthy. Sincere thanks for a job well done.

An Appeal Strictly For Men

"Perhaps nothing," said Herbert Spencer, the English philosopher, "will so much hasten the time when body and mind will both be adequately cared for, as a diffusion of the belief that the preservation of health is a duty."

The Lima Campus has certainly served its obligation to northwest Ohio in supplying a good education means. It is also the responsibility and duty of the Campus, the Student Senate, and the students to correspondingly meet the need of physical exercise and recreation.

The YMCA, with the assistance of Merle Porter, has provided students with this opportunity, especially for organized basketball. The campus is trying to organize an intra-mural basketball league to play at 1 p.m. every Friday during the winter quarter.

Thus far we have had some very good games, and we invite all men interested in playing basketball to join in them. The only requirements are that you be a campus student and have a "Y" membership, which can be obtained for the period of the basketball league.

The greatest handicap to the establishment of this league has been the conflict of work schedules of many students, but even if students are unable to come on Friday, the membership provides YMCA privileges for any time which is convenient.

It is the concern of this area and also many students to provide social and physical activities for the student.

Counseling Program Aims to Reduce Waste of Students' Time and Money

Pertinent facts about the college guidance program are set forth in the following article by Miss Margaret Rimer, Lima Senior High counselor, who often volunteers service to the Campus.

Rapid increase in college enrollments demands the challenging of the efforts and interests of the students toward adequate goals.

Counseling leads the student to develop a more mature outlook at an earlier age, and enables him to attain a higher level of productivity.

By identifying students likely to make curriculum changes, college counselors can employ more extensive counseling with them prior to registration and during the first year of college. The resulting fewer changes in courses will reduce waste of time and money for both the student and the college.

The success of the college student is not dependent on his intellectual capacities alone. His attitudes and values are vital to efficient development in a college setting.

The college recognizes two facts: students need guidance in the selection of a program of study that promises them the greatest success; this success will be due in part to non-intellectual factors. These two facts lead to some expectancies in college guidance.

These expectancies include early choice of career or profession to reduce floundering characteristic of youth. Students who have had stimulating encouragement, helpful counseling, and sound advice attain a higher level in their careers or professions that those without assistance.

Guidance is not so much a way of by-passing fundamental weaknesses — one is not going to succeed by bypassing — but a way of discovering capacities for social warmth, outgoingness, and enjoyment of working with people.

Such "watching out for" the student will lead to sound career or professional education and will foster in him discovery and development of his capacity to become an effective citizen in his community.

Committees Promote Campus Development

Active in developing The Lima Campus of The Ohio State University is the thirty-eight member Advisory committee, a composite of the Executive, Education, Publicity, and Scholarship committees.

On the Executive steering committee are executive heads from business, industry, and school, including all sub-committee chairmen.

The Executive committee spearheaded the successful Capital Fund Drive for a new Lima Campus site.

The Publicity Committee composed of alumni, directors of news media, and public relations counselors, has arranged to visit 25 schools in the ten-county area the week of February 1.

The educational chairman of the Association of Commerce as well as directors and advisors from business, industry, and the professions comprise the Education committee. They are studying curricular and extra-curricular improvements for the 1965-66 year.

Studying new ways and means to increase the number of scholarships for worthy students is the project of the school administrators and board members who serve as the Scholarship committee.

C. H. Cook Speaks for His Committee

In a campaign to raise important money, the people undertaking the job undergo many mixed emotions before they reach their goal.

The two vice-chairmen, Harry Moyer and Perry Webb, and Dr. J. McLean Reed and I, along with hundreds of other public-spirited citizens, have worked hard to provide for you and succeeding generations a Lima Campus of The Ohio State University of which you will be proud.

At times, some thought we could not fulfill our aim; at other times, everyone was sure we could. Knowing the history and determination of the people of the ten-county area The Lima Campus serves, your Committee never doubted.

The most heartening incident of the campaign was the presentation of a three-year pledge totaling $500 by the Senate representing the student body.

This was a tremendous gesture, representing real sacrifice

Typical of Community Sentiment... Campus Growth Means Area Growth

Jack Kissell, director of the Encore Theatre, has expressed the sentiments expressed by many other area citizens in this recent letter to J. McLean Reed, director.

"The enhancement of Lima's already growing and vigorous community by the growth and expansion of The Lima Campus of The Ohio State University can be greeted only with the utmost enthusiasm.

"The development of educational opportunities for people within the community and for those who would be drawn to our community by the proposed enlargement would stimulate further growth in many areas of life in Lima.

on part of the students. From then on the Committee rededicated itself to the proposition at hand.

We hereby express our appreciation to the Galvin Foundation, to the workers who solicited the gifts, and to the donors who made this dream a reality.

Let us close with this observation, "Because of the growing complexity of the world in which we live today, meaningful action by the community demands greater and deeper study; new synthesis of knowledge, involving science and technology, social and political institutions."

These are the purposes of The Lima Campus of The Ohio State University.

Charles H. Cook, Chairman
Lima Fund Raising Committee

"From a cultural point of view, the prospect of enlargement of the present campus produces the distinct hope that the enormous potential of this community may be realized.

"The Art Association, The Choral Society, The Lima Symphony Orchestra, and the Encore Theatre would all be able to cooperate to the fullest, with the university to a degree which is, at present, difficult even to imagine.

"It goes without saying that the organization which I represent and I are totally in favor of, more than that, eager to assist in, the realization of the possibility of a four-year program at OSU in Lima.

"Educational and cultural growth benefit the individual, the city, the county, the country, and the world."

Committee Plans Student Visitation

The Campus Director J. McLean Reed will visit twenty high schools in eight counties during the first two weeks in February. Assisting him will be Mrs. Jean Rhoad, English chairman of the Lima Campus; Richard Meredith, publicity chairman; and Charles O. Guy, committee member.

These visits will apprise high school students of the opportunities unlimited for acquiring the basic requirements for the first two years of college at The Lima Campus of Ohio State University.

Prospective students will hear a progress report which will include plans for the new buildings. They will be informed that the facilities will be ready by October, 1966, after which time all enrollees may complete the requirements for degrees in the colleges of education, arts and sciences, and commerce.

Plans and specifications are already in the hands of local architects, and soon officials will have an architectural sketch of the first future Lima Campus building.

Carol Winegardner Named Outstanding Student ALUMNI HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The Allen County Ohio State Alumni held their annual meeting at the Elks Club, Jan. 21.

Dr. John Corbally, OSU vice-president for administration, read Dr. Novice Fawcett's prepared address, Dr. Fawcett being unable to attend because of illness.

Carol Ann Winegardner was named the most outstanding student in Allen County. Incoming county alumni president Saul Siegel, public relations director of St. Rita's Hospital, presented the award. Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Winegardner.

Announcement by Charles Cook, drive chairman, of a $20,000 grant from the Ford Foundation pushed the fund-raising drive beyond the $425,000 mark and beyond the goal of $365,000.

Dr. Wesley Shankland, chairman of the Alumni Chapter Development Fund, reported collection of sufficient funds for a $375 full-tuition scholarship to an Allen County student.

Dr. Fawcett's address emphasized that the Lima Campus must meet two basic needs to become a four-year college: (1) sufficient enrollment and (2) additional state aid for higher education.

Later, in a telephone conversation with Director J. McLean Reed, Dr. Fawcett made clear that he has high hopes for the expansion of the Lima Campus.

Mr. Reed, earlier in the meeting noted that in the first four years student enrollment at the Lima Branch had doubled from 300 to 600 and that in the next four years student population would double again to 1,200.

"I have no doubt," said the director, "that our school population will be sufficient and that adequate funds will be provided by the state legislature on a per capita basis for freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior students."

Senate To Meet In First Session

February 8 was the date selected for the first full meeting of this year's Student Senate. All senators have filed petitions and been elected by their fellow classmates in a general election.

Requirements for senators include being a full-time student and having at least a 2.25 accumulative point hour. This year's senate includes six hold-over sophomore senators, who performed the duties of the senate during the autumn quarter.

Among the first items on the senate's agenda are the installation of senators and the election of committee heads. Also of great importance is the tentative plans for articles to be published in the Makio.

The senators will also make plans and set up committees in preparing for the May dance and the annual election of the May Queen and King.

Pictured buying books in anticipation of the winter quarter are Becky Brown and Marilyn Klotz. The book shop was a busy place as 550 students sold used books and bought those needed for new studies.

Music Educator Sees Cultural Future Promised by College Opportunities

As a music educator in the community, I am thrilled tremendously by the prospect of a full four-year state university in the Lima area.

The thought that many young people who would otherwise not be able to complete work for a college degree will now have the opportunity of increasing their contribution to themselves and to society permits me to dream great dreams for the educational and cultural future of this community.

Young people who have completed their college education in this community will have strong ties and attachments to the community and will tend to stay in it.

This will raise the educational standards of the community to a new high. These graduates will place great value upon educational attainment and will strive to give these continued opportunities to all.

The new Lima college Campus will undoubtedly develop a strong music department, and fine performing groups will appear to add immeasurably to community cultural life. These affect beneficially the community orchestra and choral groups.

The influence of the fine arts department of the university campus will emanate to the fine arts scene of the area.

A college education will not seem so far off and unattainable to young people when we procure these facilities. Our far-sighted and civic-minded leaders have begun to make a dream a reality. This will be an exciting year for higher education in our community.

Choir Begins Practice For March Performance

As the Concert Choir began its second quarter, under the direction of Ronald Richards, it started preparation for the annual meeting of the Association of Commerce early in March.

Thirty students, the men attired in maroon blazers and the women in black gowns, make a most impressive appearance, according to their audiences, as they present varied and appropriate programs.

Coffee Shop Plays Satisfying Role

The Coffee Shop is the commons where students meet to exchange ideas, discuss their philosophy, and exercise their criticism of the whole learning process, as well as eat.

The commons must now be extended to the cafeteria since the Coffee Shop is too small to serve the hundred or more who drop in during the coffee breaks.

In an average day, six to eight gallons of coffee, 50 sandwiches, 12 dozen sweet rolls, three to five gallons of juices, and four to six gallons of milk are dispensed.

Yes, the Coffee Shop is the commons meeting place where refreshments are served and students pause to ponder their progress and express their opinions.

ON OTHER BRANCH CAMPUSES

Lakewood

Enrollment at the Lakewood Academic Center is 761 students representing 56 communities. Sixty per cent of the students work and as a result about half of those enrolled carry fewer than 12-credit hours.

Three innovations mark the new year: a modern dance club, organization of two intramural basketball teams, and a tri-weekly student publication The Penlight.

This student-run publication serves not only as a forum of student ideas and a means of informing students of various news, but also as a rallying point for other school activities. Among the projects in which The Penlight is participating is the improvement of eating facilities, the establishment of a Student Senate, and the expansion of sports and social activities.

Marion

The Marion Branch started the new year with a 25% increase in enrollment, lots of school spirit, and energetic students and professors.

The Student Senate has sponsored dances, hayrides, and weiner roasts. The student body chose Pam Guy as queen to reign, along with her court, over the holidays.

The Student Senate is concentrating on bringing organized sports to the Marion Campus.

Newark

Tentative plans, made Jan. 8, call for a student publication, a composite of newspaper, humor, and art. Acting editor-in-chief Joseph Gill has set Feb. 1 as the goal for the initial issue.
